UPON hearing counsel the Court made the following

O R D E R

Permission to file special leave petition is granted.

Application for impleadment of the Union of India is allowed.

This special leave petition under Article 136 of the Constitution of India has been filed against the Judgment and Order dated 27.6.2003 passed by the Addl. Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No.1, Vadodara, Gujarat, in Sessions Case No.248/2002. The prayer in this petition is to grant special leave to appeal against the said judgment and further to set aside the judgment under challenge and further to direct fresh investigation through an independent agency and trial by a court situated outside the State of Gujarat.

When this matter was taken up it was brought to our notice that against the aforesaid judgment the State of Gujarat has preferred an appeal before the High Court. Under such circumstances, unless we see the grounds of appeal no effective order, as prayed in this special leave petition, can be passed.

However, the right to a reasonable and fair trial is protected under Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India, Article 14 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political right to which India is a signatory, as well as Article 6 of the European Convention for Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedom.

On perusal of the allegations in the special leave petition and number of criminal cases coming to this Court, we are prima facie of the opinion that criminal justice delivery system is not in sound health. The concept of a reasonable and fair trial would suppose justice to the accused as also the victims. From the allegations made in the special leave petition together with other materials annexed thereto as also from our experience, it appears that there are many faults in the criminal justice delivery system because of apathy on the part of the police officers to record proper report, their general conduct towards the victims, faulty investigation, failure to take recourse to scientific investigation etc. The Central Government with a view to carry on reforms of the criminal justice system appointed a Committee, headed by Justice Malimath. The terms of reference of the said Committee were as under:

"To examine the fundamental principles of criminal jurisprudence, including the Constitutional provisions relating to criminal jurisprudence and see if any modifications and amendments are required thereto.

To examine in the light of findings on fundamental principles and aspects of criminal jurisprudence as to whether there is a need to rewrite the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Indian Penal Code and the Indian Evidence Act to bring them in tune with the demand of the times and in harmony with the aspirations of the people of India;

To make specific recommendations on simplifying judicial procedures and practices and making the delivery of justice to the common man closer, faster, uncomplicated and inexpensive;

To suggest ways and means of developing such synergy among the judiciary, the prosecution and the police as restores the confidence of the common man in the Criminal Justice System, by protecting the innocent and the victim and by punishing unsparingly the guilty and the criminal.

To suggest sound system of managing, on professional lines, the pendency of cases at investigation and trial stages and making the Police, the Prosecution and the Judiciary accountable for delays in the respective domains."

Justice Malimath Committee has since submitted its report. The recommendations of the said Committee, however, are yet to be implemented. No law has yet been enacted, not even a scheme has been framed by the Union of India or by the State Government for giving protection to the witnesses. For successful prosecution of the criminal cases, protection to witnesses is necessary as the criminals have often access to the police and the influential people. We may also place on record that the conviction rate in the country has gone down to 39.6% and the trial in most of the sensational cases do not start till the witnesses are won over. In this view of the matter, we are of the opinion that this petition be treated to be one under Article 32 of the Constitution of India as public interest litigation leaving the question about admissibility of this special leave petition to be decided later on.

Issue Notice to the State of Gujarat and also to the Union of India.

Mrs. Hemantika Wahi, Advocate, accepts notice on behalf of the State of Gujarat. She prays and is allowed three weeks time to file counter affidavit. In the said counter affidavit the State of Gujarat shall clearly indicate as to the steps, if any, taken by it for extending protection to the lives of victims, their families and their relations, if not, the same would be done. The counter affidavit shall also indicate as to whether any action has been taken by the State against those who are said to have extended threat or coercion to the witnesses, as a result whereof allegedly the witnesses change their statements before the court. The State shall also file a copy of Memo of Appeal lodged before the High Court against the acquittal of accused in Best Bakery Case and also the statements of witnesses who turned hostile under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and before the Sessions Judge.

The Union of India would also file a counter affidavit as to the steps taken by it to implement the recommendations of Justice Malimath Committee, the proposal, if any, to enact a law for grant of protection to the witnesses, as is prevalent in several countries, and other steps sought to be taken for implementing the criminal justice delivery system.

Until further orders we direct the State of Gujarat to provide full and complete protection to the witnesses, their families and their relations, in the following cases:

(i) Criminal Case Nos.1-6/2003, pending in the Court of Special Judge, POTA, Ahmedabad (titled State vs. Mohamad Rafudan Ansari & ors.).
